

Towards an AIDS Free Generation in Uganda

Communities taking lead in reaching all children

In Uganda currently an estimated 96,000 children under 14 years are living with HIV.

37% of these children are not on treatment. On top of that many children are lost in HIV care

These children can only be traced in the communities where they are born and cared for. Yet most programs are health facility-based and thus do not reach these children.

Towards an AIDS free generation

Our goal

- ✓ A reduction in new HIV infections among children
- ✓ More children living with HIV are enrolled and retained in treatment.

Towards an AIDS free generation (TAFU-2) is a community-based programme. We address barriers that are hindering children living with HIV access to treatment, by:

- ✓ capacitating community groups to take lead in reaching all children;
- ✓ strengthening collaboration between community structures and health facilities, towards a more effective tracing, referral and follow-up system for children affected by HIV;
- ✓ using and building on national and district level strategies, policy guidelines and service delivery systems.

Programme Approach

TAFU and TAFU2

Towards an AIDS Free Generation (TAFU) started in 2015 in 5 districts in Uganda: Napak, Moroto, Serere, Mityana and Mubende. In 2017 we were able to scale up the successful approach of the programme and expanded to 3 new districts: Soroti, Kyenjojo and Ntungamo. In Mityana and Mubende we continued the programme. TAFU2 will run for two more years.
